

The Association for Hospital Medical Education (AHME) is continually seeking ways to support members in their mission to provide an outstanding educational experience for medical students, residents and faculty and, in so doing, to enhance the quality of care delivered in their institutions. Many AHME members are already subscribers to the American Medical Association (AMA) GME Competency Education Program and have found it to be a highly effective way to educate residents about a whole host of critical topics and to efficiently track their completion of this curriculum. Recognizing the impact these resources could have in your institutions, we have developed a relationship with the AMA to make the GME Competency Education Program available to AHME members at a discounted rate. Therefore, on behalf of AHME President Marilane Bond, EdD, MEd, MBA, and the entire AHME leadership team, I am very pleased to encourage you to learn more about how you, your residents, and your institution could benefit from the AMA GME Competency Education Program.

Association for Hospital Medical Education*

The American Medical Association GME Competency Education Program is delighted to partner with AHME to bring a 10% discount to AHME institutional members. The AMA GME Competency Education Program offers a new way to manage resident competency through web-based educational modules paired with customizable curricula, complete with tracking and reporting for administrators.

The program will improve the education and training of residents by providing:

- Simple, user friendly reporting that helps reduce stress on staff, residents and fellows
- Courses tailored to meet specific and varied needs of residents' schedules
- An efficient way for program directors to track core competency progress for each resident in their program

Residents can access the interactive, mobile-friendly GME Competency Education Program courses anywhere, anytime. Plus, all resident users receive free AMA membership and access to all AMA member resources that can help them through their residency and beyond.
