Standards for Integrity and Independence in Accredited Continuing Education – Standard 2.1

The accredited provider must ensure that all decisions related to the planning, faculty selection, delivery, and evaluation of accredited education are made without any influence or involvement from the owners and employees of an ineligible company.

The ACCME requires anyone in control of CME content to disclose relevant financial relationships to the accredited provider. We ask that you disclose all financial relationships with any ineligible companies that you have had over the past 24 months.

*The ACCME defines ineligible companies as those whose primary business is producing, marketing, selling, re-selling, or distributing healthcare products used by or on patients. There is no minimum financial threshold; you must disclose all financial relationships, regardless of the amount, with ineligible companies. We ask you to disclose regardless of whether you view the financial relationships as relevant to the education.

*Note: Financial relationships are those relationships in which the individual benefits by receiving a salary, royalty, intellectual property rights, consulting fee, honoraria for promotional speakers' bureau, ownership interest (e.g., stocks, stock options or other ownership interest, excluding diversified mutual funds), or other financial benefit. Financial benefits are usually associated with roles such as employment, management position, independent contractor (including contracted research), consulting, speaking and teaching, membership on advisory committees or review panels, board membership, and other activities from which remuneration is received, or expected.

Please type your name on the appropriate line as an electronic signature and type an X above your response to indicate whether or not you have a financial relationship to disclose. Any "Yes" responses will require further explanation and documentation. Thank you.
