Faculty Development for Osteopathic Recognition

Tuesday, March 9, 2021 ~ 1:00-2:00 p.m. Eastern

This webinar is designed to discuss the advantages of osteopathic recognition, osteopathic principles, and practice (OPP) curriculum development, how faculty can participate in faculty development, and resources for osteopathic educators. Participants will be able to enhance the effectiveness of teaching, administration, leadership, scholarship, and behavioral components of osteopathic residency education.

Objectives:

At the conclusion of the session, learners should be able to:

- Facilitate and encourage effective development activities designed to enhance teaching, admin, leadership, scholarship, and behavioral components of faculty performance;
- Promote a learning environment that supports osteopathic scholarly activity; and,
- Learn about the AACOM UME-GME Digital Resource Library.

Speaker:

Jacklyn McParlane, DO, FACOEP is an osteopathic graduate of Michigan State University, College of Osteopathic Medicine. Dr. McParlane completed a Traditional Osteopathic Rotation Internship and Emergency Medicine Residency at Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills Michigan, and an Integrative Medicine fellowship at the University of Arizona.

Dr. McParlane was an Emergency Medicine Program Director for nine years, and currently assists Statewide Campus System MSUCOM programs with incorporating ACGME required Osteopathic Recognition activities.

Moderator:

Kerrie Jordan, DHSc, C-TAGME is Director and Designated Institutional Official for Graduate Medical Education at Kansas City University. She serves as the current Chair of AHME's Council of Osteopathic Educators (COE).
