

Integrating High-Value Care in GME Curricula: Enabling Residents to Make Meaningful Contributions

Tuesday, February 6, 2018 ~ 1:00-2:00 p.m. Eastern

In this presentation, Dr. Chris Moriates, Assistant Dean for Health Care Value – a first of its kind position at a medical school – will describe emerging work at Dell Medical School at The University of Texas at Austin and around the country to teach and engage trainees in health care value. Dr. Moriates will highlight the importance of bridging educational and clinical environments and creating a high-value care culture. He will introduce the brand new interactive and adaptive Dell Med Value-Based Health Care (VBHC) modules, which are freely available online for learners of all levels. Additionally, he will describe tools developed at other institutions to integrate VBHC into training environments and to engage trainees in value improvement activities.

Objectives:

At the end of this session, the learner should be able to:

- Apply value-based health care educational tools in diverse learning environments;
- Recognize the importance of bridging gaps between educational and clinical priorities;
- Describe a model for engaging physicians and trainees in value improvement activities.

Speaker:

Christopher Moriates, MD is the Assistant Dean for Healthcare Value and an Associate Professor in the Department of Medicine at Dell Medical School at UT Austin. He has co-authored the book Understanding Value-Based Healthcare (McGraw-Hill, 2015) and led the creation of the University of California at San Francisco (UCSF) Cost Awareness curriculum for internal medicine residents. He is a founding editor for the "Teachable Moments" series in JAMA Internal Medicine. He is also the Director of Implementation Initiatives at Costs of Care, a global non-profit organization curating clinician insights that drive better care at lower cost. He speaks internationally on topics related to educating clinicians about healthcare value and how to implement high-value care programs.

Moderator:

Carrie Eckart, MBA is the Assistant Vice President of GME Accreditation for all of HCA's GME programs across the country and serves as Chair of AHME's Council of Institutional Leaders (COIL). Carrie worked in GME for 29 years prior to joining HCA in September 2016 and is past president of AHME. She serves on the AHME Board of Directors in addition to running the AHME Academy and serving on the ALPD (Program Planning) Committee.
