Succeeding in the ACGME's NAS: Strategies for Program Administrators and Coordinators

Tuesday, December 4, 2012 ~ 1:00-2:00 p.m. Eastern

A price-conscious, value-packed teleconference

It has never been a more exciting time to work in Graduate Medical Education! As we have heard, the ACGME is transforming the process and the focus for accreditation of GME institutions and programs.

How will we prepare? How will resident evaluation systems change to report on the milestones? What information will the ACGME be reviewing annually? How will we remain in compliance over a ten-year accreditation cycle? What will the GME Office expect from the programs? And, most importantly, what will the role of the administrator/coordinator be in the Next Accreditation System and how will it be different from our current responsibilities?

AHME has a new Council whose mission it is to gather Program Administrators and Coordinators from around the country to prepare for the journey ahead. Join us for the very first COPAC-sponsored Teleconference to answer these and other questions related to the brave new world of the Next Accreditation System.

Objectives:

At the end of this teleconference session, the learner should be able to:

- Describe updated ACGME requirements, processes and activities of the Next Accreditation System;
- Prepare for the evolving role of the residency administrator/coordinator as part of the program team; and
- Develop strategies to work within your program and institution to identify opportunities for improvement and innovation.

Speaker: Catherine Eckart, MBA, has worked in Graduate Medical Education administration since completing her Biomedical Engineering and MBA degrees in 1987. Currently as the Director of GME at the University of Buffalo and previously at Albany Medical Center, she is responsible for all accreditation activities for 60 ACGME-accredited programs training 800 residents and fellows. She is currently serving on AHME's Board of Directors as its President-Elect and has presented at every AHME Academy and annual AHME Spring Institute since joining in 1992.

Moderator: Quinn Turner, MS, C-TAGME, is manager of medical education services and coordinator of the transitional year and podiatric medicine residency programs at Iowa Methodist Medical Center in Des Moines. Quinn has been a member of AHME since 1992 and currently serves on the Board as Member-at-Large and as the inaugural Chair of the newly-formed Council of Program Administrators and Coordinators.
